

For Immediate Release:

January 9, 2014

The Calaveras County Economic Development Company (CCEDC) announces a new objective for the New Year: working to increase Broadband availability throughout Calaveras County.

“The road to prosperity is at least partially available through the Internet,” stated the CCEDC. Citing the lack of high speed Internet in many parts of the county, the CCEDC is working with Central Sierra Connect (CSC) to identify areas lacking broadband availability. CSC representative Darrell Slocum provided an overview of the county’s current broadband infrastructure, projects under construction and need for expanded availability at a recent EDC meeting.

The EDC welcomes any questions, in addition to any information that local residents may have about areas of the county that may lack competitive Broadband Internet. Residents interested in helping bring Calaveras County Broadband service up to competitive levels are encouraged to contact the EDC at the address listed below.

About the CCEDC: The Calaveras County Economic Development Company is a volunteer organization dedicated to increasing economic prosperity for everyone in Calaveras County.

About CSC: Central Sierra Connect is a grant funded organization tasked with bridging the digital divide by bringing broadband to the people (Infrastructure) and the people to broadband (Adoption).
